

RGA MCQ Examination

To qualify for award of the Diploma of Rural Generalist Anaesthesia, RGA trainees need to successfully complete the multiple-choice question exam (MCQs) and the RGA Standardised Structured Scenario-based Assessment (RGA-SSSA).

The purpose of the multiple-choice question (MCQ) examination is to drive early learning on quality and safety in anaesthetic practice and is mapped to the learning outcomes within the RGA curriculum. Trainees are required to successfully complete the examination within the first 26 weeks FTE of the diploma.

Understanding the format of the MCQ exam

The multiple choice questions will have 4 distractors with one correct answer. You are required to choose the one best answer.

Trainees will have access to have practice questions prior to attempting the examination
You will have a maximum of 3 attempts at the exam within the first 6 months of training.

Practice Test :

The practice test can be taken any number of times during your learning and revision activities. This practice exam takes the form of 25 randomized questions across each of the 9 learning outcome areas that are mapped to the MCQ task. There is a 30-minute time limit for each practice exam.

At the conclusion of the 25 questions, you will see a report of how many questions were correct and links or further information on each question.

You are encouraged to use this resource to prepare for next stage of the assessment task.

MCQ examination.

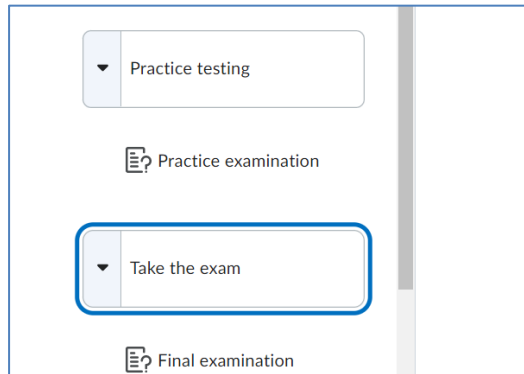

The examination contains 50 randomized questions across all learning outcomes from the quarantined exam question bank. You will have 60 minutes to complete the examination and will require a score of 70% or more to pass.

You have 3 attempts at the MCQ exam.
