Healthcare Industry Prospectus

It's our pleasure to invite you to join the Medical Education, Wellbeing, Communication and Leadership & Management Special Interest Groups (SIGs) at this year's Combined SIG meeting on the Gold Coast.

This year's meeting is convened by the Medical Education SIG. The theme is "Turning tides", set on the iconic Gold Coast with its beaches and surf. We hope that some of the challenging topics facing our profession will be navigated during our time together.

We're joined by invited speakers and some of our profession's thought leaders to explore themes such as:

- Beyond cultural competence.
- Inclusion.
- Change management.
- High performance team training.
- How our profession needs to adapt.

The program will include plenary lectures, panel discussions and a variety of workshops focusing on the skills fundamental to practice, including coaching skills for medical educators, how to write research, and managing acute severe behavioural disturbance.

Based at the friendly and stylish QT hotel, it's a great place to network with colleagues and enjoy participating in some thought-provoking and stimulating education.

The Gold Coast is one of Australia's premier holiday destinations. Famous for its surf breaks, stunning beaches, theme parks, shopping, nightlife and hinterland.

Our invited speakers include:

Professor Subha Ramani is a general internist and educationalist. She completed a Masters in Medical Education at the University of Dundee and a PhD in Health Professions Education at Maastricht University. At Brigham and Women's Hospital (BWH), her leadership roles include faculty lead for global perspectives and community at the Brigham Education Institute, director of the program for research, innovations and scholarship in the department of medicine and director of evaluation and the scholars in medical education pathway for the internal medicine residency program at BWH.

Professor Ramani is a member of the Association for Medical Education in Europe (AMEE) Executive Committee, chairs the Fellowship Committee and directs the ESME-CT course. She is recognised internationally for her faculty development initiatives and scholarship. She has several peer reviewed publications in medical education journals and her scholarly interests include mentoring, feedback, clinical teaching, mindset, emotional intelligence and application of theory to educational practice.

Associate Professor Tanisha Jowsey is a leading researcher in culture, communication, and experiences within clinical environments. Her research has investigated patient and clinician experiences in a variety of clinical settings, including operating theatres, medical wards, and general practices. She was born in Aotearoa New Zealand and the Waimakariri river eases her worries. Tanisha is associate professor of medical education and professionalism at Bond University. Tanisha gained her doctorate in public health and medical anthropology at the Australian National University, specialising in intersections between patient experiences of time and chronic illness. Tanisha is currently involved in several projects exploring interfacing cultures within operating rooms.

Dr Nicole Gray is a registered psychologist and human factors specialist, based in Brisbane, Australia (Turrbal and Jagera Country). She is a passionate advocate of a systems-based approach to optimising human performance in high risk organisations. Nicole has worked for many years in applied psychology and human factors across a range of safety critical industries, and is known for her commitment to evidence based, pragmatic solutions for organisations, teams and individuals.

Nicole is the head of Australian operations for The Keil Centre, psychologists and ergonomists working to keep people safe and healthy at work.

We look forward to seeing you on the Gold Coast.
